Author Reconciles Creationism and Darwinism

London, UK (February 25, 2010) – From author Dr. Imad Hassan comes a comprehensive, in-depth, and informative work that re-examines the meaning of the passages in the Qur'an and the Bible that address creation. Shajara Code Decoded unveils the truth between creation and evolution in this English version of Azan Al-Anaam, which was co-authored with the author's brother, Aladdin, and first published in Sudan in Arabic form. In this philosophy of comparative religion, Dr. Hassan provides plenty of evidence from both religious books supporting the Darwinian Theory of Evolution.

Creationism and Darwinism have long been seen as incompatible. But these two powerful ideas are reconciled in Dr. Hassan's book. It provides linguistic interpretations of the scriptures to make its case. It shows that creationism, when properly understood, describes the Darwinian evolution of life on Earth. Shajara Code Decoded explains how all species originated from a common ancestor as explained in the scriptures, how the cattle didn't evolve on earth and how they were made to integrate with the earthly evolution, locates the place and time of conversion of ape-man to intelligent beings and calculates them to be sixteen males and sixteen females and their footsteps in their first five days as intelligent humans. These and more ideas are about to unfold as the author reveals them all in this book.

Readers will unravel several other mysteries in the scriptures that support Darwinism without abandoning creationism in this book. It takes aim at both the scientists and the devout who cling to dogmatic views. The compatibility of creationism and Darwinism can only be appreciated from the evidence – often stranger than fiction – presented in this book.

It's time to have a better and clearer understanding of the holy texts to finally bridge the gap between creationists and evolutionists.
