Dropship Magazine offers free wholesale dropship information along with a five star ranking system

Dropship Magazine has committed themselves to bringing you the latest and most up-to-date information for wholesale and dropship industries today! The best thing about the site is that membership is free, and any dropshipper or wholesaler is free to join, and post their company information. Upon approval, Dropship Magazine ranks companies based on a five star scale, with five stars being the highest score obtainable.

The Overall Ranking of each website reviewed is based on Quality, Contact Information and Service. Dropship Magazine has a series of criteria that is put into consideration when reviewing sites.

Full contact information is listed on web site including address and phone number

A True Dropshipper will have their contact information readily available. Are you given the information to contact the dropshipper directly, or is this company hiding this? If their contact information is hidden, most likely you are dealing with a middleman.

Website has clear policies listed regarding wholesale / dropshipping procedures

Dropship Magazine understands that each dropshipper or wholesaler will have slightly different policies for their services, but a few policies should remain the same throughout all legitimate companies. Look for companies who ask for a sellers permit. A wholesaler will only be able to give you products at a wholesale price if you have a sellers permit. If you are dealing with a dropshipper, make sure products are shipped with your name and address. If the company does not ship the products to your customer with your name and address on the return shipping label, then you are dealing with the middleman.

Web site is Wholesale ONLY and does not sell to the general public.

Make sure you are buying at Wholesale and Dropship Prices. You can only get dropship / wholesale prices if you are dealing directly with the drop shipper and not a middleman. Middlemen are notorious for taking a cut from your sale that you thought was already at a wholesale price. Do research and understand what your products normally wholesale for. Buying directly from Drop Shippers gives you the advantage over others who are buying from Middlemen or Fulfillment Centers.

Whois information is actual & is not using a privacy guard company to hide the website ownership.

By going to www.whois.net you should see non-hidden contact information for the wholesaler or dropshipper. If the information is hidden I would be very wary. Check the year the domain name was registered and how long they have been providing their services on their actual website. Make sure the dates are fairly relative. NOTE: Who would want to do business with a website company if they want to hide who they are? If you encounter this I would be very cautious about giving out credit card information.

Web site reflects they are a True Dropshipper / Wholesaler.

With more and more businesses popping-up online these days, it gets more difficult to determine which companies are legitimate, and which ones are out there to make a quick buck. There are a few tests you can do to make sure you are dealing with a trustworthy company: Does the company belong to and support their local BBB (Better Business Bureau)? How does their site rank on the BBB website? Does the company belong to and support their local BBB plus subscribe to their Online Reliability Program? What is there overall public opinion based from the BBB, the Rip off Reports' Website, Forums and Scam Review Websites?
